

Computational Statistics

First Edition

Geof H. Givens and Jennifer A. Hoeting

A Wiley-Interscience Publication

JOHN WILEY & SONS, INC.

New York / Chichester / Weinheim / Brisbane / Singapore / Toronto

Preface

This book covers most topics needed to develop a broad and thorough working knowledge of modern statistical computing and computational statistics. We seek to develop a practical understanding of how and why existing methods work, enabling readers to use modern statistical methods effectively. Since many new methods are built from components of existing techniques, our ultimate goal is to provide scientists with the tools they need to contribute new ideas to the field.

Achieving these goals requires familiarity with diverse topics in statistical computing, computational statistics, computer science, and numerical analysis. Our choice of topics reflects our view of what is central to this evolving field, and what will be interesting and useful for our readers. We pragmatically assigned priority to topics that can be of the most benefit to students and researchers most quickly.

Some topics we omitted represent important areas of past and present research in the field, but their priority here is lowered by the availability of high-quality software. For example, the generation of pseudo-random numbers is a classic topic, but one that we prefer to address by giving students reliable software. Some topics, such as numerical linear algebra, are on the borderline. Such topics are critical for many applications, yet good routines are generally available. In our judgment, the frequency with which one must shelve the routines and dig into the details of numerical linear algebra falls (barely) below the threshold we set for inclusion in this book. Among the classic topics we have chosen to cover are optimization and numerical integration. We include these because (i) they are cornerstones of frequentist and Bayesian inference; (ii) routine application of available software often fails for hard problems; and (iii) the methods themselves are often secondary components of other statistical computing algorithms.

Our use of the adjective modern is potentially troublesome: there is no way that this book can cover all the latest, greatest techniques. We have not even tried. Some topics, such as heuristic search and Markov chain Monte Carlo, simply move too quickly. We have instead tried to offer a reasonably up-to-date survey of a broad portion of the field, while leaving room for diversions and esoterica. Some topics (e.g., principal curves and tabu search) are included simply because they are interesting and provide very different perspectives on familiar problems. Perhaps a future researcher may draw ideas from such topics to design a creative and effective new algorithm.

Our target audience includes graduate students in statistics and related fields, working statisticians, and quantitative empirical scientists in other fields. We hope such readers may use the book when applying standard methods and developing new methods.

The level of mathematics expected of the reader does not extend much beyond Taylor series and linear algebra. Breadth of mathematical training is more helpful than depth. Essential review is provided in Chapter 1. More advanced readers will find greater mathematical detail in the wide variety of high-quality books available on specific topics, many of which are referenced in the text. Other readers caring less about analytical details may prefer to focus on our descriptions of algorithms and examples.

The expected level of statistics is equivalent to that obtained by a graduate student in his or her first year of study of the theory of statistics and probability. An understanding of maximum likelihood methods, Bayesian methods, elementary asymptotic theory, Markov chains, and linear models is most important. Many of these topics are reviewed in Chapter 1.

With respect to computer programming, we find that good students can learn as they go. However, a working knowledge of a suitable language allows implementation of the ideas covered in this book to progress much more quickly. We have chosen to forgo any language-specific examples, algorithms, or coding. For those wishing to learn a language while they study this book, we recommend you choose a high-level, interactive package that permits the flexible design of graphical displays and includes supporting statistics and probability functions. At the time of writing, we recommend S-Plus, R, and MATLAB.<sup>1</sup> These are the sort of languages often used by researchers during the development of new statistical computing techniques, and are suitable for implementing all the methods we describe, except in some cases for problems of vast scope or complexity. Of course, lower-level languages such as C++ can also be used, and are favored for professional grade implementation of algorithms after researchers have refined the methodology.

Even adept computer programmers may have little understanding of how mathematics is carried out in the binary world of a computer. Mysterious problems with full-rank matrices that appear noninvertible, integrals and likelihoods that vanish, numerical approximations that appear more precise than they really are, and other oddities are not unusual. While not dismissing the importance of computer arithmetic and numerically stable computation, we prefer to focus on the big picture of how algorithms work and to sweep under the rug some of the nitty-gritty numerical computation details.

<sup>1</sup>Websites for these software packages are www.insightful.com, www.r-project.org, and www.mathworks.com, respectively. R is free software reimplementing portions of S-Plus; the others are commercial.

The book is organized into three major parts: optimization (Chapters 2, 3, and 4), integration (Chapters 5, 6, 7, and 8), and smoothing (Chapters 10, 11, and 12). Chapter 9 adds another essential topic, the bootstrap. The chapters are written to stand independently, so a course can be built by selecting the topics one wishes to teach. For a one-semester course, our selection typically weights most heavily topics from Chapters 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, and 11. With a leisurely pace or more thorough coverage, a shorter list of topics could still easily fill a semester course. There is sufficient material here to provide a thorough one-year course of study, notwithstanding any supplemental topics one might wish to teach.

A variety of homework problems are included at the end of each chapter. Some are straightforward, while others require the student to develop a thorough understanding of the model/method being used, to carefully (and perhaps cleverly) code a suitable technique, and to devote considerable attention to the interpretation of results.

The datasets discussed in the text and problems are available from the book website, www.stat.colostate.edu/computationalstatistics. The errata will also be found there. Responsibility for all errors lies with us.

Geof H. Givens and Jennifer A. Hoeting

Fort Collins, Colorado

Contents

|   |             |
|---|-------------|
| Preface  | vii  |
| Acknowledgments  | xi   |
| 1 Review   | 1    |
| 1.1 Mathematical notation                              | 1           |
| 1.2 Taylor's theorem and mathematical limit theory     | 2           |
| 1.3 Statistical notation and probability distributions | 4           |
| 1.4 Likelihood inference                               | 9           |
| 1.5 Bayesian inference                                 | 11          |
| 1.6 Statistical limit theory                           | 13          |
| 1.7 Markov chains                                      | 14          |
| 1.8 Computing  | 17          |
| 2 Optimization and Solving Nonlinear Equations         | 19   |
| 2.1 Univariate problems                                | 20          |
| 2.1.1 Newton's method                                  | 24          |
| 2.1.1.1 Convergence order                              | 27          |
| 2.1.2 Fisher scoring                                   | 28          |
| 2.1.3 Secant method                                    | 28          |
| 2.1.4 Fixed-point iteration                            | 30          |
| 2.1.4.1 Scaling  | 31          |
| 2.2 Multivariate problems                              | 31          |
|   | xiii |

|          |   |           |
|----------|---|-----------|
| 2.2.1    | Newton's method and Fisher scoring                 | 32        |
| 2.2.1.1  | Iteratively reweighted least squares               | 34        |
| 2.2.2    | Newton-like methods                                | 37        |
| 2.2.2.1  | Ascent algorithms                                  | 37        |
| 2.2.2.2  | Discrete Newton and fixed-point methods            | 39        |
| 2.2.2.3  | Quasi-Newton methods                               | 39        |
| 2.2.3    | Gauss–Newton method                                | 42        |
| 2.2.4    | Nonlinear Gauss–Seidel iteration and other methods | 43        |
|          | Problems   | 44        |
| 3 | Combinatorial Optimization                         | 49 |
| 3.1      | Hard problems and NP-completeness                  | 50        |
| 3.1.1    | Examples   | 51        |
| 3.1.2    | The need for heuristics                            | 55        |
| 3.2      | Local search                                       | 55        |
| 3.3      | Tabu algorithms                                    | 59        |
| 3.3.1    | Basic definitions                                  | 60        |
| 3.3.2    | The tabu list                                      | 61        |
| 3.3.3    | Aspiration criteria                                | 63        |
| 3.3.4    | Diversification                                    | 64        |
| 3.3.5    | Intensification                                    | 65        |
| 3.3.6    | A comprehensive tabu algorithm                     | 65        |
| 3.4      | Simulated annealing                                | 67        |
| 3.4.1    | Practical issues                                   | 68        |
| 3.4.1.1  | Neighborhoods and proposals                        | 68        |
| 3.4.1.2  | Cooling schedule and convergence                   | 69        |
| 3.4.2    | Enhancements                                       | 72        |
| 3.5      | Genetic algorithms                                 | 73        |
| 3.5.1    | Definitions and the canonical algorithm            | 74        |
| 3.5.1.1  | Basic definitions                                  | 74        |
| 3.5.1.2  | Selection mechanisms and genetic operators         | 75        |
| 3.5.1.3  | Allele alphabets and genotypic representation      | 76        |
| 3.5.1.4  | Initialization, termination, and parameter values  | 78        |
| 3.5.2    | Variations   | 78        |
| 3.5.2.1  | Fitness  | 78        |
| 3.5.2.2  | Selection mechanisms and updating generations      | 79        |

|          |  |            |
|----------|--|------------|
| 3.5.2.3  | Genetic operators and permutation chromosomes | 80         |
| 3.5.3    | Initialization and parameter values           | 83         |
| 3.5.4    | Convergence                                   | 83         |
|          | Problems                                      | 84         |
| 4 | EM Optimization Methods                       | 89  |
| 4.1      | Missing data, marginalization, and notation   | 90         |
| 4.2      | The EM algorithm                              | 90         |
| 4.2.1    | Convergence                                   | 95         |
| 4.2.2    | Usage in exponential families                 | 97         |
| 4.2.3    | Variance estimation                           | 98         |
| 4.2.3.1  | Louis's method                                | 99         |
| 4.2.3.2  | SEM algorithm                                 | 101        |
| 4.2.3.3  | Bootstrapping                                 | 102        |
| 4.2.3.4  | Empirical information                         | 103        |
| 4.2.3.5  | Numerical differentiation                     | 103        |
| 4.3      | EM Variants                                   | 104        |
| 4.3.1    | Improving the E step                          | 104        |
| 4.3.1.1  | Monte Carlo EM                                | 104        |
| 4.3.2    | Improving the M step                          | 105        |
| 4.3.2.1  | ECM algorithm                                 | 105        |
| 4.3.2.2  | EM gradient algorithm                         | 109        |
| 4.3.3    | Acceleration methods                          | 110        |
| 4.3.3.1  | Aitken acceleration                           | 110        |
| 4.3.3.2  | Quasi-Newton acceleration                     | 111        |
|          | Problems                                      | 113        |
| 5 | Numerical Integration                         | 121 |
| 5.1      | Newton–Côtes quadrature                       | 122        |
| 5.1.1    | Riemann rule                                  | 122        |
| 5.1.2    | Trapezoidal rule                              | 126        |
| 5.1.3    | Simpson's rule                                | 129        |
| 5.1.4    | General kth-degree rule                       | 131        |
| 5.2      | Romberg integration                           | 131        |
| 5.3      | Gaussian quadrature                           | 135        |
| 5.3.1    | Orthogonal polynomials                        | 136        |
| 5.3.2    | The Gaussian quadrature rule                  | 136        |
| 5.4      | Frequently encountered problems               | 139        |
| 5.4.1    | Range of integration                          | 139        |

|          |  |            |
|----------|--|------------|
| 5.4.2    | Integrands with singularities or other extreme behavior | 139        |
| 5.4.3    | Multiple integrals                                      | 140        |
| 5.4.4    | Adaptive quadrature                                     | 140        |
| 5.4.5    | Software for exact integration                          | 140        |
|          | Problems  | 141        |
| 6 | Simulation and Monte Carlo Integration                  | 143 |
| 6.1      | Introduction to the Monte Carlo method                  | 144        |
| 6.2      | Simulation  | 145        |
| 6.2.1    | Generating from standard parametric families            | 145        |
| 6.2.2    | Inverse cumulative distribution function                | 145        |
| 6.2.3    | Rejection sampling                                      | 147        |
| 6.2.3.1  | Squeezed rejection sampling                             | 150        |
| 6.2.3.2  | Adaptive rejection sampling                             | 151        |
| 6.2.4    | The sampling importance resampling algorithm            | 155        |
| 6.2.4.1  | Adaptive importance, bridge, and path sampling          | 159        |
| 6.2.4.2  | Sequential importance sampling                          | 161        |
| 6.3      | Variance reduction techniques                           | 162        |
| 6.3.1    | Importance sampling                                     | 163        |
| 6.3.2    | Antithetic sampling                                     | 169        |
| 6.3.3    | Control variates  | 172        |
| 6.3.4    | Rao–Blackwellization                                    | 176        |
|          | Problems  | 177        |
| 7 | Markov Chain Monte Carlo                                | 183 |
| 7.1      | Metropolis–Hastings algorithm                           | 184        |
| 7.1.1    | Independence chains                                     | 186        |
| 7.1.2    | Random walk chains                                      | 188        |
| 7.1.3    | Hit-and-run algorithm                                   | 191        |
| 7.1.4    | Langevin Metropolis–Hastings algorithm                  | 193        |
| 7.1.5    | Multiple-try Metropolis–Hastings algorithm              | 194        |
| 7.2      | Gibbs sampling  | 195        |
| 7.2.1    | Basic Gibbs sampler                                     | 195        |
| 7.2.2    | Immediate updating                                      | 198        |
| 7.2.3    | Update ordering   | 198        |
| 7.2.4    | Blocking  | 199        |
| 7.2.5    | Hybrid Gibbs sampling                                   | 199        |
| 7.2.6    | Alternative univariate proposal methods                 | 200        |

|          |  |            |
|----------|--|------------|
| 7.3      | Implementation                                      | 200        |
| 7.3.1    | Ensuring good mixing and convergence                | 201        |
| 7.3.1.1  | Choice of proposal                                  | 201        |
| 7.3.1.2  | Number of chains                                    | 202        |
| 7.3.1.3  | Simple graphs to assess mixing and convergence      | 203        |
| 7.3.1.4  | Reparameterization                                  | 204        |
| 7.3.1.5  | Burn-in and run length                              | 205        |
| 7.3.2    | Practical implementation advice                     | 206        |
| 7.3.3    | Using the results                                   | 207        |
| 7.4      | Example: Fur seal pup capture–recapture data        | 208        |
|          | Problems  | 212        |
| 8 | Advanced Topics in MCMC                             | 219 |
| 8.1      | Auxiliary variable methods                          | 219        |
| 8.1.1    | Slice sampler                                       | 221        |
| 8.2      | Reversible Jump MCMC                                | 224        |
| 8.2.1    | RJMCMC for variable selection in regression         | 227        |
| 8.3      | Perfect sampling                                    | 230        |
| 8.3.1    | Coupling from the past                              | 231        |
| 8.3.1.1  | Stochastic monotonicity and sandwiching             | 234        |
| 8.4      | Example: MCMC for Markov random fields              | 235        |
| 8.4.1    | Gibbs sampling for Markov random fields             | 236        |
| 8.4.2    | Auxiliary variable methods for Markov random fields | 241        |
| 8.4.3    | Perfect sampling for Markov random fields           | 244        |
| 8.5      | Markov chain maximum likelihood                     | 246        |
|          | Problems  | 247        |
| 9 | Bootstrapping                                       | 253 |
| 9.1      | The bootstrap principle                             | 253        |
| 9.2      | Basic methods                                       | 255        |
| 9.2.1    | Nonparametric bootstrap                             | 255        |
| 9.2.2    | Parametric bootstrap                                | 256        |
| 9.2.3    | Bootstrapping regression                            | 256        |
| 9.2.4    | Bootstrap bias correction                           | 258        |
| 9.3      | Bootstrap inference                                 | 259        |
| 9.3.1    | Percentile method                                   | 259        |
| 9.3.1.1  | Justification for the percentile method             | 260        |
| 9.3.2    | Pivoting  | 261        |

|           |   |            |
|-----------|---|------------|
| 9.3.2.1   | Accelerated bias-corrected percentile method, <math>BC_\alpha</math> | 261        |
| 9.3.2.2   | The bootstrap <math>t</math>   | 263        |
| 9.3.2.3   | Empirical variance stabilization                                     | 264        |
| 9.3.2.4   | Nested bootstrap and prepivoting                                     | 265        |
| 9.3.3     | Hypothesis testing   | 268        |
| 9.4       | Reducing Monte Carlo error   | 268        |
| 9.4.1     | Balanced bootstrap   | 268        |
| 9.4.2     | Antithetic bootstrap   | 269        |
| 9.5       | Other uses of the bootstrap  | 269        |
| 9.6       | Degree of bootstrap approximation                                    | 270        |
| 9.7       | Permutation tests  | 272        |
|           | Problems   | 273        |
| 10 | Nonparametric Density Estimation                                     | 277 |
| 10.1      | Measures of performance  | 278        |
| 10.2      | Kernel density estimation  | 280        |
| 10.2.1    | Choice of bandwidth  | 281        |
| 10.2.1.1  | Cross-validation   | 284        |
| 10.2.1.2  | Plug-in methods  | 288        |
| 10.2.1.3  | Maximal smoothing principle  | 290        |
| 10.2.2    | Choice of kernel   | 292        |
| 10.2.2.1  | Epanechnikov kernel  | 292        |
| 10.2.2.2  | Canonical kernels and rescalings                                     | 293        |
| 10.3      | Nonkernel methods  | 294        |
| 10.3.1    | Logspline  | 294        |
| 10.4      | Multivariate methods   | 297        |
| 10.4.1    | The nature of the problem  | 298        |
| 10.4.2    | Multivariate kernel estimators                                       | 298        |
| 10.4.3    | Adaptive kernels and nearest neighbors                               | 301        |
| 10.4.3.1  | Nearest neighbor approaches  | 302        |
| 10.4.3.2  | Variable-kernel approaches and transformations                       | 303        |
| 10.4.4    | Exploratory projection pursuit                                       | 306        |
|           | Problems   | 312        |
| 11 | Bivariate Smoothing  | 315 |
| 11.1      | Predictor–response data  | 316        |
| 11.2      | Linear smoothers   | 318        |
| 11.2.1    | Constant-span running mean   | 318        |

|           |   |            |
|-----------|---|------------|
| 11.2.1.1  | Effect of span                           | 320        |
| 11.2.1.2  | Span selection for linear smoothers      | 322        |
| 11.2.2    | Running lines and running polynomials    | 325        |
| 11.2.3    | Kernel smoothers                         | 326        |
| 11.2.4    | Local regression smoothing               | 327        |
| 11.2.5    | Spline smoothing                         | 329        |
| 11.2.5.1  | Choice of penalty                        | 330        |
| 11.3      | Comparison of linear smoothers           | 330        |
| 11.4      | Nonlinear smoothers                      | 332        |
| 11.4.1    | Loess                                    | 332        |
| 11.4.2    | Supersmoother                            | 333        |
| 11.5      | Confidence bands                         | 337        |
| 11.6      | General bivariate data                   | 341        |
|           | Problems                                 | 342        |
| 12 | Multivariate Smoothing                   | 347 |
| 12.1      | Predictor–response data                  | 347        |
| 12.1.1    | Additive models                          | 348        |
| 12.1.2    | Generalized additive models              | 351        |
| 12.1.3    | Other methods related to additive models | 355        |
| 12.1.3.1  | Projection pursuit regression            | 355        |
| 12.1.3.2  | Neural networks                          | 358        |
| 12.1.3.3  | Alternating conditional expectations     | 358        |
| 12.1.3.4  | Additivity and variance stabilization    | 359        |
| 12.1.4    | Tree-based methods                       | 360        |
| 12.1.4.1  | Recursive partitioning regression trees  | 362        |
| 12.1.4.2  | Tree pruning                             | 364        |
| 12.1.4.3  | Classification trees                     | 367        |
| 12.1.4.4  | Other issues for tree-based methods      | 368        |
| 12.2      | General multivariate data                | 369        |
| 12.2.1    | Principal curves                         | 369        |
| 12.2.1.1  | Definition and motivation                | 369        |
| 12.2.1.2  | Estimation                               | 371        |
| 12.2.1.3  | Span selection                           | 372        |
|           | Problems                                 | 372        |
|           | Data Acknowledgments                     | 377 |
|           | References                               | 379 |
|           | Index                                    | 407 |